

Olympia Dumbo, Ernest Crichlow's former home top Brooklyn luxury deals

Famed Black artist's home undergoing gut renovation

A condo in Fortis' new Olympia Dumbo development and a brownstone in Fort Greene once owned by Ernest Crichlow were the priciest Brooklyn listings to go into contract last week.

The most expensive was Unit 19E at 30 Front Street, which was asking $5.5 million, according to Compass' weekly report of Brooklyn homes listed for $2 million or more. The 2,300-square-foot apartment has three bedrooms, two bathrooms and a private terrace facing the East River.

It offers views of Downtown Brooklyn and has a kitchen with stone slab and high-end appliances. The primary suite has two closets and an en-suite bathroom. Amenities at the building, which is on pace to be Brooklyn's most expensive ever, include a fitness center, a bowling alley and indoor and outdoor pools.
